IN HARD LUCK.

Sixty Chinamen Imprisoned on the Haytien Republic.

They Cannot Produce Evidence of a Right to Land in America and are Left to Starve in the Harbor.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Sixty Chinese are metaphorically starving to death on board a steamer at Portland, Ore., with plenty of food to eat at their disposal. This paralyzed state of affairs has been brought about in this way:

The Haytien Republic, a steam passenger and carrying vessel, recently arrived in Portland with a large number of Chinese on board, and as sixty of them could not produce evidence that they were entitled to reside in the United States they were forbidden to land. At the same time the Haytien Republic was libeled for smuggling opium and Chinese subjects, with the result that the owners abandoned the vessel, leaving the sixty unfortunate Chinese on board.

Believing that the owners had done this to make the government care for the Chinese, thus saving themselves from the expense of supporting and deporting the latter, the treasury department refused to interfere in the matter, and the sixty Celestials were left on board the vessel uncared for, without food and forbidden to land.

A protest from the Chinese minister against allowing his fellow countrymen to starve caused the administration to take action, and after a consultation between the officials of the state and treasury department and the department of justice, it has been decided that this government has no right to interfere and that either the owners of the Haytien Republic must care for their contraband passengers (and this they will not do) or the Chinese must starve to death in the midst of plenty, pending the disposition of the libel in courts. This is the official decision, but it has also been determined that the Chinese shall be feed three unofficial meals a day. While the United States government is actually feeding the Chinese it shuts its eyes to the fact and in order to be thoroughly consistent, the government maintains that the sixty men must go without food until the court settles the matter of the libel.

LOSING THEIR HEADS

Over a Phenomenal Oil Find at Waterville, Ohio.

Speculators Flocking In From All Over the Country and Farmers Will Make Millions.

TOLEDO, June 20.—Intense excitement exists in the hamlet of Waterville, fifteen miles west of this city over a phenomenal oil find. The territory was abandoned as worthless thirty years ago. Recent indications induced a few farmers and one or two speculators to lease all the territory possible. The work was conducted secretly. All at once several wells were opened. Two wells are flowing six hundred barrels a day and several others are running two and four hundred.

Oil men from all over the country are flocking in on every train. The Standard Oil company have representatives there who are taking up everything in sight that has not already been secured. A number of farmers will make thousands or perhaps millions, if they don't lose their heads.

The little town of 500 today looks like a city. Hundreds are arriving daily and are living in tents, board shanties and anything that will afford slight protection from the weather.

THROW UP YOUR HANDS!

Said a Bank Cashier to Burglars Robbing a Postoffice.

He Was Shot Twice, But Returned the Fire and One of the Burglars Was Killed.

ORIN, N. Y., July 20—Burglars broke into the postoffice last night at this place. J. H. Thomas, cashier of the bank next to the postoffice, heard them, and going down to the store, called upon them to throw up their hands. He was shot twice, not seriously. He returned the fire and one burglar was killed. The man is unknown, and was between forty and fifty years of age.

STARVED TO DEATH.

PADUCAH, Ky., July 20—Last night, Rodney Gray, a notorious negro tough and gambler, was stabbed to death by five negro railway employes. Gray snatched a sum of money from one of the men and attempted to run away. He was overtaken and literally beaten and butchered to death in a swamp near the city limits.

ARRAIGNED FOR ROBBERY.

Henry and Kid Wilson To Before the Court at Fort Smith, Ark.

FORT SMITH, ARK., July 20.—Henry Starr and Kid Wilson were arraigned in the federal court on an indictment charging them with participating in the Prior Creek train robbery last spring. Starr is indicted already for the robbery of Carter's store, at Sequoyah, November 19, 1892, and Shofield's store at Chapah, November 12, 1892. Mike Cruckmore, now in jail here, is indicted with him in both these cases. Starr is also indicted for horse stealing. He has not yet been indicted for the murder of Floyd Wilson, but a special grand jury will be impanelled in a few days to indict him in these two cases. Express officers here identified Kid Wilson as one of the Prior Creek robbers. Starr's mother and sister have been here for two or three days past with the hope of getting him out on bond, but that is out of the question. They assert that they can give a $20,000 bond if the court would accept it.

GUNN WENT OFF.

His Creditors Cobble Everything Owned by Him.

A Little Financial Matter of Gunn, Which Resulted in Being Left to Many People.

LIMA, OHIO, July 20—There were sensational developments last night in the matter of the disappearance of E. L. Gunn, the insurance and loan agent, and it is stated that it will take fully $25,000 to pay off his indebtedness and straighten out his transactions so as to satisfy the loan company for which he did business. The furniture in his office was attached yesterday afternoon on a suit brought by William Stahl, who had borrowed the money through Gunn from the Connecticut school fund, and he avers that the interest, amounting to $90, paid to Gunn, was not paid to the company, as he has failed to receive the usual receipt for it. The officer first visited the residence for the purpose of attaching the family horse and carriage, but learned from Mrs. Gunn that the outfit had been sold. Dr. F. C. Stenber garnisheed the money of the missing man in the Metropolitan bank. His claim is similar to Stahl's. A number of other suits have been filed.

Gunn came here about six years ago from Indianapolis, where his parents now reside, and engaged in the loan and insurance business, acting in the former as agent for the Gunn Loan and Investment company, of Fort Scott, Kan. Several years ago he left that company and up to the time of his departure had been loaning money for the Connecticut people. He was a good fellow, a hard worker at his business, but, it seems, a very poor manager. Mrs. Gunn said that she knew nothing of her husband's whereabouts; that she had enough money to live upon comfortably and keep her two daughters. Ex-Congressman C. O. Spencer, of Hartford, manager of the Connecticut School fund, arrived here to investigate Gunn's accounts. He said he had not yet had time to determine the amount of Gunn's indebtedness to the company. He believes that the restless agent has gone never to return, and his total indebtedness will probably exceed the amount stated above.

AROUND ABOUT US.

News of Interest From Different Parts of the State.

Robert Coleman, near Decatur, fell under a straw stacker and a wheel passing over his head clipped off one ear.

The late Mrs. Elizabeth Terstege, of New Albany, was ninety three years old. She resided in that city half a century.

The residence of Joseph James, of Lawrence county, was struck by lightning, and Mrs. James was seriously shocked.

Alonzo Merrill, of Laporte, who left home ten years ago and was supposed to have been killed in a railroad wreck, has returned.

Kid McCoy, who is making his headquarters at Muncie, and Isaac Bowe, at Lima, Ohio, have signed articles for a finish fight, soon to come off. Prize fighting is one of the industries of that section of the state, and matches are frequent.

The question of co-education of races, which has been a disturbing element at Crawfordsville for some time, has been temporarily settled by the school authorities resolving to continue separate schools, at least for another year. It was resolved, however, to dispense with colored teachers, those tried of late not giving satisfaction.

The suicide of Joseph Hite, the young farmer of Bevin township, Howard county, continues to excite general surprise. It developes that he first swallowed morphine and then used his revolver. He was in fairly prosperous circumstances for a young man, but he replied to a higher education, and it appears he was unwilling to wait the slow processes of mental development. He left a quantity of crude verse, in which he bewailed a disappointed ambition, and gave as a reason for self-destruction that he could do the world no good.

A romance has developed in the life of Miss Theresa Ford, of Columbus. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. John Ford. In November, 1877, Mr. Ford abandoned his wife and the following April Theresa was born. In April, 1882, Mrs. Ford was granted a divorce with custody of the child, and then Mrs. Ford married John Carson. Night before last a stranger rehirsed an interview with Miss Ford. He proved to be her father, whom she had never seen. He is now engaged in business at St. Louis, Mo. The meeting proved a very joyful one. It was the first time they had ever met.

Philip Hint, who murdered his brother in law, Lorin Poynter, of North Liberty, escaped to the woods after beating his victim, but he was tracked down and lodged in the jail at South Bend. The murderer is known as a rambler, drunken fellow, who has been engaged in numerous brawls. He claims to have no knowledge of the killing, and is supposed to be paying the way for a plea of insanity. Hint found his victim on the premises of his mother in law, repairing a mill and order him off. Mr. Poynter paid no attention to his demand, whereupon Hint shot him over the third time, being fatal.

CRISP COMING LATE.

Will Name Congressional Committees at Home.

Announcement Will Probably be Made Soon After Congress Opens—Report to Come Before New Laws.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Mr. Crisp, who will undoubtedly be speaker of the next house, has set word that he will not reach the capital until some time after the 1st of August, probably as late as the 5th. This is accepted as indicating an intention on his part to practically complete the preparation of the committees long before he leaves home. When he gets here he will probably have his list ready, subject, of course, to some changes, but complete in the main, and the announcement of the committees may be expected within a few days after congress meets.

It is, of course, an erroneous assumption that the financial legislation at this session of congress will necessarily come all from the coinage committee. The only work for that committee is what relates to the Sherman silver law. The bill to repeal that law will necessarily go to the coinage committee, and if it should be amended the amendment could relate to coinage only, and not to banking. The probabilities are, however, that a simple repeal bill, stopping the purchase of silver under the Sherman law, will be reported, and that whatever financial legislation in addition to this is contemplated will come later from the committee on banking and currency. There is a very strong feeling that any attempt to include other legislation in the same bill which repeals the Sherman law would protract the fight and postpone indefinitely the stoppage of silver purchases.

An earnest effort will be made to get rid of the existing law first and to devise whatever changes may be deemed necessary in the national currency afterward. A good many members of the house are undoubtedly anxious to have the tax on state banks repealed, but there will be a number of other propositions pressed, and it is said that there will be a strong effort made in behalf of a national system based on the old New York banking law, which is so adapted to the present national bank system as to do away with the deposit of bonds by national banks to secure their currency, and securing it instead by a safety fund acquired from a 2 per cent. tax on bank circulation. A bill for this purpose will be introduced as soon as congress meets.

With relation to the suggestion that Messrs. Morgan, Pugh, Daniel, Teller, Stewart and Wolcott will conduct a filibuster in the senate against the repeal of the Sherman law without a free coinage attachment, it is said that the public sentiment in Alabama and Virginia is such as to make this action on the part of the two Alabama senators and Mr. Daniel dangerous to their personal interests, and the opinion is expressed in quarters to make it worthy of consideration that, while these three men will probably fight for free coinage and resist the repeal of the Sherman law unless they can get free coinage, they will not carry their opposition to the extent of filibustering, and that Messrs. Stewart and Teller will be deserted by their democratic colleagues of the silver faith if they begin to filibuster.

WANTS $100,000 OF RUSSELL.

Delia Keegan Begins a Suit for an Alleged Outrage.

NEW YORK, July 20—Russell Sage has been sued for $100,000 damages for seduction under promise of marriage. The plaintiff in the suit is Delia Keegan. She alleges that the offence for which she now seeks legal redress occurred in 1885, when Mr. Sage was a widower. The complaint was served by J. Replist Marshall, of 99 Broadway, the lawyer for Mrs. Keegan, on April 29 last. Previous to that date a demand had been made on Mr. Sage for a settlement but he declined to come to terms, insisting that it was an attempt at blackmail. He was then warned that suit would be begun and he directed that all the papers should be served on his lawyer, H. S. Bennett. After obtaining several extensions Mr. Bennett put in Mr. Sage's answer June 26. Since that time both sides have been fencing to secure advantages without making the matter public. A motion to extend the defendant's time was denied yesterday.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Two Well Known Citizens Die at Fiercelon, Ind.

FIERCELON, Ind., July 20—Two very sudden deaths deprive Fiercelon of two old and much respected citizens. Mr. John S. Moore fell dead while helping to thresh wheat near here. Mr. Moore was an old soldier and has been for some years justice of the peace of the township. Mr. David Firestone also fell dead at his home in this place. Both deaths were caused by heart failure.

GASOLINE EXPLOSION.

Father, Mother and Child Badly Burned.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 20—The residence of John Uricks, at 116 Dunham street, North Fairmount, was destroyed by fire this morning by the explosion of a gasoline stove. Mr. Uricks was fatally burned, while his wife and five year old child were severely scorched.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Detective McHannon Expires With Congestion of the Brain.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 20—Charles McHannon, ex-captain of detectives, died suddenly this morning at his home, 96 Hodge avenue. He was attacked by vomiting last night, but seemed much better this morning. McHannon has been on the force twenty six years. He was promoted from the detective force two weeks ago and assigned to duty as lieutenant. He refused to accept this position and resigned. It is thought that death resulted from congestion of the brain.

NOT HER OLD SELF.

Martha Wilkes Is Disappointing Her Backers.

Made the Favorite in the Trenton-Sit Trot at Detroit, But Is Unable to Win a Heat.

DETROIT, July 20—Martha Wilkes, the sensation of 1892 had her mettle taken in the trotting free for all yesterday afternoon, and made an exhibition of herself which must have disappointed the Wiggins party. She was naturally the favorite, for it was thought that by this time she would come to her old time speed. The opening heat found the Canadian stallion Alvin in front until the head of the stretch was reached. Martha went for him but broke and struck a pace, finishing at the lateral gait. In the meantime Bob Stewart's many time winner, Walter E., rushed up on the faltering stallion and beat him badly in the stretch. The Stewart gelding cut his own pace in the second heat when his driver was ready, and although Martha Wilkes showed him the way to the stretch he fairly outfooted her and again the mare went to a pace. The third heat found Walter four lengths back and in a bad hole when the word was given. He was pocketed in such a manner that had Nancy Hanks been there in his place she could not have won. Breaking in an effort to get out the Stewart horse found himself at the tail end with Little Albert doing the leading. Given brought up the chestnut Nightingale at the third quarter in a grand finish and won the heat. The finish of the race was postponed until today.

MONMOUTH PARK, July 20—Monmouth Park was a pleasant place yesterday and a crowd of fair proportions saw some fine sport. One stake race, the Seud, at five furlongs, was on the program. The defeat of the top-heavy favorite, Stonewall, in this, and the overthrow of Don Alonzo in the fourth, brought a lot of money into the possession of the bookmakers. Stonewall with Lankey up caught nearly every member of the talent for the Seud Stakes, which was the certain winner of the card. The two-year-old colt, Medler, got away from the post with a rush when the flag fell, and for almost a half mile outstripped Stonewall and Terminator. Then he appeared to tire a trifle and a whirlwind finish between the favorite and the California horse ensued. It was a pretty sight, with Terminator's nose in front as the judges were passed. Medler was beaten only a neck for second place.

ERIE, Pa., July 20—Hon. Charles M. Reed's brown road team, Lunette and Evangeline, broke the record. The race was for a wager of $2,000, distance, fifteen and a half miles, time allowed, fifty five minutes. The distance was covered in forty-nine and marshalf minutes, which beats the Boston twenty mile track record of fifty eight minutes.

ARCADIA, Ill., July 20—The races were attended by 3,000 yesterday. Only two heats of the 2.27 class were trotted this afternoon. Goodtime and Pendrock each won a heat.

REFUSE REDUCED WAGES

Thus Did 1,500 Employes of the Milburn Wagon Works

And as a Consequence the Proprietor Shut Down the Works for a Period of Six Months.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 20—The Milburn Wagon works, employing 1,500 men, shut down yesterday. A reduction of wages had been made. The men refused to accept it. Mr. Milburn threatened to shut down for six months if the men refused to work. He gave them an hour to decide, and at the end of that period shut down.

BALTIMORE, July 20—A third furnace of the Maryland Steel company, at Sparrow's Point, was banked last night, throwing all the furnaces which had been in operation out of blast. About 300 laborers are out of employment from the shut down. The Bessemer steel mill will be run three days in the week and will use the supply of pig iron which has accumulated at the works.

A day or so ago a jolly crowd left this city to enjoy a pleasant day at Lee, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lentners where a tempting dinner was spread by the kind host and hostess. Not until a late hour did the crowd come back to their respective homes. Among the jolly ones were Misses Bertha Grabor, Minnie Steinhammer, Helen Badeltter, Lulu Eckart, Clara Hilicke, Pearl Ryan, Minnie Gimple, Mattie Summer, Rosa Sneller, Laura Schaninann, Messrs. Charley Rohn James Coy Peter Zurlick, Henry Klug, Charlie Siebold, Clem Martin Harry Scherer, Willie Hood, Bert Conley and Allie Hunt.

FITZGERALD, Ga., July 20—James Southern, reputed to be a cousin of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, left yesterday for Indian Territory, to join his daughter, Mr. Dickson. From there Mr. Southern and daughter, Miss Grace, will go to California for the benefit of Mrs. Southern's health.

Comptroller Eckles Sends Cheering News to the Distressed Bankers—Better Times Coming.

DENVER, Col., July 20—The cheering news from Washington has had a wonderful effect upon Denver this morning. The dispatch from Comptroller of the Currency Eckels, to the effect that he would give every possible aid to the banks of this city, is supplanted on every side.

Bank Examiner Adams, to whom the telegram was addressed, is besieged by excited people anxious to hear a confirmation of the good report and to get an expression from him. The officers of the several closed banks all notify the public that they will be able to pay every cent due to customers.

Bank Examiner Frank Adams, who came from Pueblo to look into the condition of affairs, said this morning that so far as he has been able to make inspection of the suspended banks, he did not believe that their condition was so serious as many were led to believe. The opinion of leading financiers in the east to the effect that the crisis would soon be passed, would doubtless have a beneficial effect in restoring confidence among the people here. Those banks which have not suspended are transacting business as usual this morning. President D. H. Moffett, of the First National, is greatly pleased with the news from Washington this morning and predicts an early resumption of business.

Uncle Sam Makes Inquiries Concerning a Fire.

James Dowling, Cashier of a Mint, Claims $25,000 in Greenbacks Were Burned.

NEW ORLEANS, July 20—James M. Dowling, cashier of the United States mint in this city, who has been prominently identified with the commercial and political history of New Orleans for years, will have to explain a serious charge here soon to the federal officials. A fire occurred in one of the mint vaults three weeks ago. The officials of the mint could not account for it. Cashier Dowling was the only person who had the key to the vault and knew the combination of the inner door. At the time of the fire there was $7,000,000 in gold and silver and $25,000 in greenbacks in the vault. The greenbacks were in a box and the fire started among the bills. Mr. Dowling said that an oil lamp had been misplaced from its bracket by an explosion of an incandescent globe in the vault and had fallen in the tin box. The government experts were sent from Washington to investigate, and Mr. Dowling was shadowed by detectives. The amount of the deficit is $21,000. It is charged in some quarters that instead of being $25,000 in the vault at the time of the fire, but a small amount was stored in the box.

THEY CAN'T FIGHT.

Governor Matthews Will Stop the Smith-Corbett Fight.

Refuses to Talk Because He Does Not Want His Plans Known to the Humorists.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 20—Governor Matthews was asked today regarding a press dispatch from Chicago which says that he will order out the militia and stop the Smith-Corbett fight, but he declined to say what he intended to do. He would neither affirm nor deny that he intended to have militia present. The governor will give no reason for his refusal to talk about the matter, but it is apparent that he does not want his plans known to the Roby management before they are ripe for execution. It is believed here that active measures will be taken to prevent the next fight and in the meantime the executive is keeping his own counsel. He is very indignant over the timorous policy of Sheriff Fredericks, of Lake county, and whatever plans he may have under consideration the Lake county officials will not be apprised of them until they are executed.

Sad Fate of Two Bathers at Pittsburg.

One Dives Against a Rock and Crushes His Skull—The Other Goes to the Rescue.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 20—Two sons of Andrew Patterson, of Braddock, lost their lives while bathing in a dangerous place in the Monongahela river, last evening. John, aged nine, dived from the bank and struck his head against a piece of cinder. His skull was fractured, and he sank to the bottom. His brother, Stanislaus, aged twelve, jumped to the rescue and he, too, failed to come to the surface. John Simon, in going down to search for the boys, lost his footing and would have been drowned. When he recovered, he said that the bodies of the boys were held in a bunch of iron hoops and wire, in which he also had become entangled. Three dives were required to take the boys, who were the only children of their parents.

DR. H. CLARKE WHITE, of Warsaw, has been in charge of the Indian police since the date of the Indian outbreak. He was in the city today on his way east to confer with Gen. Miles, who is a patient in the hospital here. Dr. White is a cousin of Mrs. Southern, of Lafayette.

MAHONING'S RECEIVER.

One Is Appointed in the Circuit Court Here Today.

A Refused Tramp Is Wanted for a Murder Committed at Chicago—Court News.

ALL. R. Higbenbotham, through his attorney, A. A. Parman, brought suit this morning in the circuit court against the Findlay, Fort Wayne and Western Railroad company, Chas. J. Patterson and the Washington Trust company on a claim of $1,000 and asked that a receiver be appointed for the railroad.

The defendants appeared, waived service, and the judge on vacation, after hearing the evidence, appointed Andrew Brown receiver of the road and ordered that all the property of the road be turned over to him.

Several weeks ago in the court at Lima, Ohio, Mr. Brown was made receiver of the road, but was removed last Monday and M. A. Smalley, of Ottawa, put in his place, while Mr. Brown was made manager, in place of C. J. Patterson.

Just what the object of the parties is in again making Mr. Brown the receiver of the road is not known. The company is in a bad financial way and is probably seeking to tide over its difficulties.

Sheriff Clausmier has received a letter from the chief of police of Chicago asking for William Vaglin, a man who is wanted in that city for the commission of a murder on Halstead street a few weeks ago. Vaglin had been in the custody of the sheriff a short time after the murder was committed, being among a batch of tramps arrested then, but was released, and his identity with the murderer was not known or suspected. Had he been held and served a jail sentence he could now have been handed over to the Chicago authorities. The fellow, when he was in the custody of the sheriff, said he was from Chicago, and referred the sheriff to a rich brother, living there on the same street the murder was committed.

Charles Miller, through his attorney, J. M. Robinson, commences suit in the superior court against Christine Miller, alleging abandonment. The defendant left the plaintiff some two years ago and since then they have not been living together. The parties have been having trouble and a case between them is being heard in the court of Justice Ryan this afternoon.

Deputy Sheriffs Melching and Harpold were called to the east yards this morning to arrest seven tramps, who were committing depredations. The fellows saw the officers coming and ran, but they were given chase and caught. In the justice court Deputy Prosecutor Ryan gave them a searching examination and showed them up as a pretty bad crowd of toughs. They were all sent to jail for fifteen days.

Catharine Hettinger has commenced suit in the superior court against Martin Hayes on a petition to sell real estate. James F. and Joseph H. Rose are the attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Justice France fined Albert Wolf $1 and costs for assault and battery on John Lehman. Both parties were workmen with the Ringling show and had a fight. Wolf paid and was let go. Justice France is hearing the case of the state against Wickliffe this afternoon.

The board of county commissioners will be in session tomorrow and Saturday.

Mrs. Martha Hall is being tried before Justice Ryan for provoking Mrs. Alice Haidenrich. The parties reside on Taylor street and their difficulties grow out of a big family quarrel.

Deputy Sheriff Melching arrested four tramps this afternoon and took them before Justice Ryan. Officer Harpold is out at the east yards after more. The people out there telephoned the sheriff for protection against the tramps at noon.

CHINA INTERFERES

In Behalf of the Siamese and Against France.

This Action Will Have a Tendency to Hasten a Settlement Between the Belligerents.

TIENTSIN, July 20—Information has been received here from Pekin to the effect that China has taken measures to support Siam as against the French. Siam has for many years paid tribute to China, but only as a matter of usage and convenience and it is now apparent that China is determined to assist the Siamese against French encroachment upon their territory. The interference of China will add a most interesting feature to the France-Siamese dispute and will probably result in a modification of some of the demands of France as contained in her ultimatum.

THE CHANGE RACKET.

Ticket Sellers at the Circus Try to Work People.

The City Police Say They Haven't Much Time for Tom Wright's Show—A Valuable Young Mule.

The city police have little good word to say of the Forepaugh show which exhibited yesterday. Detective Hook, after the circus, at the interests of the patrons, sent a letter to Chief Wallace notifying him to have all the available men possible on the show grounds. The day force being light, Chief Wallinson instructed a number of the night men to look after the show grounds, and gave the circus good protection. The police men received other sources. The night policemen who were on the grounds during the day complained that they were treated shamefully by the employes of the show. Patrol Wagon Driver Swain states positively that he saw the ticket sellers trying to work the change racket on a number of unsuspicious persons. Swain says he saw a young man from the country hand the ticket seller $10 for two tickets. Instead of getting back $9 the country man got only $6. Noticing the deception the young fellow went back to the wagon and made a big row. The ticket seller refused to make the matter good and the young man from the country laid the matter before officers Lindsey and Swain. Seems that the ticket seller came down and looked over the $3. Another man, who had the appearance of being an aged farmer, says he was swindled out of $10. He handed the ticket seller $20 for two tickets and got back only $10. He did not notice the fraud until the wagon was closed.

Last night the showmen reported that one of their fine large mules had been stolen. The animal was very valuable and was exhibited in the cage of trained animals.

It is hardly likely the management of the show knew of the dishonest actions of their employes.

SENSATIONAL SUICIDE.

Sad Tragedy in One of Our Neighboring Towns.

Mrs. Morris, Young, Beautiful and Accomplished, Ends Her Life in a Melodramic Manner.

Details of a highly sensational suicide at Van Wert, Ohio, reached this city about 9 o'clock this morning. That erstwhile quiet little village was thrown into a fever of excitement by the tragic ending of Mrs. Morris, the young and accomplished wife of one of the prominent citizens of that town. The tragedy is rendered all the more deplorable by the fact that there was no apparent reason for the committal of the rash act.

Early this morning Mrs. Morris went to Hill & Co's drugstore and purchased a nickles worth of poison. Nothing was suspected by the clerk who sold her the drug, as Mrs. Morris was only eighteen years of age and of a jolly, light hearted disposition. She had been married only six months and no cloud had been known to mar her married life. The deed was accomplished in a manner which goes to show that the unfortunate young woman had fully determined to end her life and had laid her plans to that the details were decidedly melodramic. Shortly after the morning meal had been finished and while her husband was sitting out on the front porch, Mrs. Morris deliberately took the drug. She then went into the front room, sat down at the piano and played one of her husband's favorite airs. The young woman then went out on the porch where her husband was sitting and quietly informed him that she "felt as if she had taken poison." The husband was greatly startled at the words of his wife, and could scarcely bring himself to believe her statement. In a few moments, however, his young wife fell on the floor, and it became clearly evident that she was in earnest, and had taken poison. The alarm was given and medical aid hastily summoned, but all to no avail. Mrs. Morris continued to grow worse, and begged for something to ease the terrible pain. She acknowledged, however, that she had taken the drug with sufficient intent and wished to die but gave no reason for the rash act. The unfortunate woman did not linger long and passed away in terrible agony. Her husband was frantic with grief.

The couple were married at Mrs. Morris' home in Lyons, Ohio, where Mr. Morris was engaged in the dry goods business. About three weeks ago he sold out and moved to Van Wert. The tragedy is one of the saddest which ever occurred at or near Van Wert.

FIFTY-THREE YEARS.

Three Worthy Citizens Who Came Here Long Ago.

Henry, Piepenbrink, Oppenheimer and Reidelsheimer Will Celebrate the Event on July 22.

Next Saturday is the fifty third anniversary of the arrival in Fort Wayne of three of our best known German citizens. They are Conrad Piepenbrink, of 18 West Washington street; Abraham Oppenheimer, of 34 West Berry street, and Sigmond Reidelsheimer, of 141 West Berry street. This trio alighted from a stage coach at the door of Washington Hall, a hotel built out of logs, at the corner of Barr and Washington streets, on the evening of July 22nd, 1840. Fort Wayne was then a little village, whose only communication with the outside world was through the medium of a lumbering stage coach, which made semi-weekly trips between this city and Defiance, Ohio, then the head of navigation for light craft on the Maumee river. Three years later the Wabash canal was constructed. The week following the arrival of Messrs. Piepenbrink, Oppenheimer and Reidelsheimer, Mr. John Mohr, sr., located in Fort Wayne. The four gentlemen will celebrate the anniversary of their landing in an appropriate manner next Saturday. They are now arranging for the event

New York city the other day sent a young woman to prison "three months for loitering." This was the only charge made against "a young girl, Lizzie Lawler." It is a notorious fact that 10,000 dodes and great, strong men "loiter" every day through the streets of Gotham without a fear of "three months' imprisonment" for the crime.

RAILWAYS AND SHOPS.

The Westinghouse Closes One of Its Factories.

Accidents, Incidents and Personal Mention of the People About the Railway Centers.

At the Westinghouse Electric Light and Manufacturing company's work, in Newark, N. Y., four hundred hands, one half the force, were laid off Monday. Head Clerk Everetts said that this action was simply a discretionary measure, as the men had been working night and day for the past few weeks and the out put had been large and the collections poor. The men, he says, would be taken back in a few days. It is said that the company intends consolidating all their works at Brinton, a suburb of Pittsburg, and that soon the Newark plant is to be removed to that place.

WANAMAKER PASS HIS FARE.

A brakeman on the Pennsylvania road is just now in daily expectation of a change in his circumstances. He does not know whether it will come to him in the form of a discharge from the service or an appointment to some important position of trust. Whichever it may be the ex-postmaster general, John Wanamaker, will be the cause of it. The other day he took a train out of Philadelphia which was so heavily laden with passengers that the conductor was not able to collect the tickets between stations. He called on the brakeman in question to assist him in the work, and it fell to that employe's lot to demand Mr. Wanamaker's ticket from him. He had forgotten his pass, and to the brakeman's demand for his ticket, replied: "I have no ticket; I am a director of this road." If you have have no ticket you must pay your fare. I'm not supposed to know that you are a director," replied the brakeman. "My name is John Wanamaker!" persisted the ex-postmaster general. "You must have heard it." "Oh, yes! I am quite familiar with the name," was the retort. "It has become quite a household word. I believe the directors of the world's fair and the Sunday closers are also acquainted with it, but that makes no manner of difference. My duty is either to see your pass or collect your fare. If you cannot produce the former you must pay me the latter." Mr. Wanamaker produced a $20 bill, and after securing and making a note of the brakeman's name, paid his fare, with the mental resolve that hereafter he would take care to have his pass when he traveled on that train.

CHANGES—FILLER.

Homer Blakeslee, a nephew of Conductor L. M. Blakeslee, has been appointed assistant yardmaster of the Pittsburg to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Frank Tibbles. Thomas Sinclair, a clerk in the east car shop, has been appointed to the position in Mr. Graham's office vacated by Tommy Golden, who goes into the office of Supreme Secretary W. S. O'Rourke, of the Catholic Knights of America. This change will take place tomorrow evening. James Winner, clerk at Hoham's drug store, will take Mr. Sinclair's position in the east shops. Mr. Winner recently moved here from Jackson, Mich.

Pittsburg Engineer M. Laughlin has returned from a visit with relatives in the east. He has been absent two weeks.

M. J. Pocock, G. E. Brooks and D. W. Shea, firemen on the Pittsburg road, have returned to their duties after a short absence.

J. Henry received a severe flesh wound in his right leg yesterday while working with the spuck makers in the Pittsburg shops.

The present management of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton is certainly an aggressive one. It now proposes to build into Springfield, Ohio, leasing the main line at Jamestown, and there is said to be no question as to extending the Indianapolis, Springfield and Western from Decatur to some prominent western railroad center like Quincy, Ill.

Caller W. H. Bryant, of the Pittsburg, took a lay off Monday for the first time in many months. He attended the show.

The girls employed in the converter department of the electric light works are out of work on account of delay in the receipt of material.

Frank Sverington, traveling car inspector of the Pittsburg road, has returned from Chicago, where his duties detained him six weeks.

The new iron bridge of the Lake Erie and Western over the Wabash at Peru is completed and is one of the most substantial structures in the state.

E. Behne and H. C. C. Nesse, of the Pittsburg car shop, are attending the world's fair. The latter was accompanied to Chicago by his son and daughter.

Michael C. Tierney, engineer at the Pittsburg machine shop, has gone to Chicago to remain two weeks. During his absence Henry Galland has charge of the engine room.

Lumber dealers state that there is an unusual amount of building going on in the country. Farmers are preparing to store their bountiful crops, which were never better than at present.

Passenger engine No. 161, which hauls Nickel Plate trains 1 and 5, Engineer Walt Miller and Dennis McCarthy, is in the Stony Island shops for repairs to her tank. No. 173 is now hauling the trains.

The Phoenix Bridge company, which has the contract to build the new bridge between Jeffersonville and Louisville, over the Ohio river, has suspended operations. It is reported to be short of money to complete the work.

J. H. Bryant is down sick again and his condition is serious. Mr. Bryant is employed in the Pittsburg roundhouse. He returned to work Monday after several weeks' siege with malarial fever and yesterday suffered a relapse.

Ed. Engle, Truss Baner, Rudy Chapmiller, Will Cross, Joe Andrews, John Majors, William Volmer and Joe Gaskins, of the electric light works, have gone to the state militia encampment at Terre Haute. All belong to the Battery and Rifles.

The decision of the Vandalia management to run no excursion trains to Maxinkuckee on Sunday is meeting with the approval of the owners of cottages there, and is tending to bring more people to the place on Saturday to spend Sunday.

A gentleman who is well informed as regards the affairs of the Terre Haute car works states that as soon as the financial situation improves and the company can raise money on some of the paper it holds it will be out of trouble and running as usual.

F. H. Fink, machinist in the Pittsburg shops, is off duty on account of injuries received Tuesday afternoon. He was endeavoring to remove a nut on an engine when the wrenched slipped and mashed the third finger of his left hand. Drs Stemen attended Fink.

Today's shipments from the electric light works include a sixty-light arc plant to Tamaresville, N. Y., and 129 arc light plant, for railroad purposes, to Baltimore, Md. In a day or two the company will make a big shipment to Cincinnati, including twelve dynamos.

W. R. Burt, receiver of the Toledo, Ann Arbor and North Michigan, says there is nothing in the report that he was to meet a committee to agree on terms for taking back the striking engineers and firemen. On the contrary the road, he says, would be operated as a non-brotherhood line.

George I. Roberts, general passenger agent of the Erie, states that not more than two thousand persons went to Chicago from New York on the reduced excursion rates to the world's fair. The Lake Erie and Western, with its part rail and part water route, carried more people than that from Indianapolis to the world's fair in the month of June.

In mentioning the promotion of W. E. Davis from yardmaster to assistant trainmaster we stated that he was yardmaster in 1874, whereas his term of service in that office dates from 1880, when Samuel Grable resigned to take a position as conductor on the Pittsburg. In 1874 Mr. Davis, who is yet a young man, was a mere boy and a clerk in the yardmaster's office.

A number of the leading roads, the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Philadelphia and Reading and the Lake Shore being of the number, have sent special instructions to their freight agents to the effect that in receiving less than carload shipments they must be careful to see that each separate package is plainly marked with the necessary information to carry it to its final destination.

MARTYRS TO HEADACHES

The Experience of Miss Louise Lincoln Tucker, a Boston Saleswoman.

The women who are martyrs to sick headaches are numbered by thousands, and among the victims none suffer more than the employes in stores and shops, says the Lynn Sunday News.

Their work is confining, the hours are long, and the surroundings are often such as to aggravate any tendency to headaches.

The experience of one of the best known clerks in Chandler A Co's large store on Winter street, Boston, is worthy the attention of all who are similarly situated.

Miss Louise Lincoln Tucker has been employed in this establishment for the past four years, and during that time, as for years before, she has suffered with sick headaches to such an extent as to compel her many times to leave her business and return to her home in West Roxbury.

So violent have these attacks been that she has often been unable to walk from the store to the depot, and has been compelled to call a carriage.

This succession of tortures continued until last March, when Miss Tucker's attention was attracted by the story of another woman's experience, published in a Boston paper.

She had spent large amounts of money on physicians, who had been unable to relieve her sufferings. She decided to try the merits of the highly extolled Paine's celery compound.

She took it without the knowledge of her family or friends.

But the change in her appearance soon attracted the attention of the members of her family and her business associates, and, thoroughly convinced, she one day told how Paine's celery compound had wrought for her the cure which physicians had been unable to accomplish.

For the first time in the years of her employment she had gone through an entire month without a return of the attacks, and not only a relief but an absolute cure has been effected by the compound.

So grateful is Miss Tucker for the cure in her case, that she is willing to tell all who suffer as she did, know of the only remedy she ever found.

A moon woman tells a great truth in the sentence: "If men intend to cease all lovertike attentions to their wives as soon as they are married, then they ought never to begin those attentions." The lane of married life is on the part of both men and women's forgetting the sentiment that made life charming during the days of courtship.

FRONTIER FORT LIFE.

The Daily Routine of Uncle Sam's Soldiers—Tribute to Trade Duty.

Garrison life for the soldiers on the frontier is somewhat different from garrison life in and about the big cities of the Eastern and Central states. The soldier's life in the far West is not only a happy one, but it is also very pleasant and somewhat exciting. Plain fort is no fort at all, it is simply a collection of tepees and buildings set down on the prairie or on the crest of some high bluff, with no bastions, walls, stockade nor defense of any kind, and might better be termed a small settlement than a fort. Select a diamond shaped piece of ground, says the Globe-Democrat sq 400 yards square, on two sides build substantial quarters for the officers and on the other two sides rows of barracks for the enlisted men. Erect stables, a hospital, guard house, post traders store (the latter has now been generally superseded by what is known as the canteen or post exchange), a clubroom for officers, another for the enlisted men, a most excellent and complete hospital for the sick, with capable doctors and attentive nurses. In constant attendance a bakery, reading room, gymnasium and billiard rooms and the picture is complete.

At regimental headquarters a band is stationed, and in consequence more or less of a social hope and dances are available for both officers and enlisted men. At the post exchange light wines, beer and cider are sold at almost cost prices, but no whisky is under any pretense, allowed for sale within the limits of the garrison. In the billiard rooms a nominal charge of five cents a game is made, but the receipts merely sufficing to pay the attendants and keep the place in repair. Should any profit whatsoever above expenses be made the same is divided pro rata among the organizations serving at the post. The soldier gets $13 per month, an increase of $1 for the third year, $2 for the fourth and $3 for the fifth; also additional remuneration if promoted corporal, sergeant or artificer. Besides this, if worked as a carpenter, plasterer or mechanic of any kind he receives what is called extra duty pay, then must be included board, lodging, clothing, schooling, medical attendance and various other perquisites.

Guard duty is about the hardest service in the army, and to this the soldier is eligible about one day in every six or seven. Two roll calls a day, reveille and retreat (tattoo has been done away with), but in its place has been substituted a check roll call at 11 p. m. Cavalry man, stables twice a day, drills usually two or three times a week and dress parade every morning, weather permitting. Target practice is held during two months at the best seasons of the year, when enlisted men and officers alike qualify at the different ranges for the grades of marksman and sharpshooter. As a general rule these companies of any regiment serving west of the Mississippi river are supplied with two shotguns each and a certain allowance of powder, shells, wads and shot, which are intended for hunting purposes. Any man in any company, whenever he feels so inclined, if not detailed on some duty, can amuse himself by knocking over jack rabbits, jaggies, sage hens, quail and prairie chickens galore, or missing as many shots as he wants to.

Tours of detached service are simply picnics, and no man would stay in a garrison if he had half a chance to get out and off over the prairie for detached service of any kind. We catch all sorts of material for soldiers—the beer-drinking Teuton, the bull dog Englishman, the fun-loving Irishman, and, in fact, men of all nationalities and all climes. They come to us as bright as meteors and as verdant as unripe cucumbers, but no matter how ignorant or green a recruit may be at the time of joining he usually leaves the army well satisfied with his five years of discipline and experience, and also a fine marksman in the bargain. In our service the training of a soldier to be a fine shot is the principal object, while, as a rule, most European armies neglect this important subject of a military man's career, depending more on numbers and volley firing than on individual skill. As for the commissioned officer, he is as hard worked as the private soldier. I know the general impression is that the commissioned branch leads a good easy time of it, with nothing to do but play cards and draw their pay. As a matter of fact, more than nine-tenths of the officers in the army to-day fairly earn every cent of their pay, and more, too.

In the weather when a man's shirt is converted from a shining starched beauty into a wet rag in an hour's time, it is little less than brutal to say that the Chinese must go.

A chemist advises that canned fruit be opened an hour or two before it is used. It is far richer after the oxygen of the air has been added to it.

A GRASSHOPPER STORY.

The Grasshopper Journed and Freddy's—He Treated the Congregation.

"Pop," said little Frankie Billitops, "tell me a story."

"Well, Frankie," said Mr. Billitops, "once there was a little boy whose name was Freddy. His real, full name was Frederick Tinsby, but everybody always called him just Freddy, spoke the New York Sun.

"Freddy lived in the city, but every summer he used to go on a big farm, who lived in the country in a little old village. There was an old church in this village, and every Sunday morning Freddy used to go to church generally his father and mother and some of the other folks from the house used to go, too. But one Sunday, just Freddy and his aunt went alone.

"It was a warm day and the windows of the church were pulled down all around at the top to let in the air. Freddy looked out through the open windows and saw the meadow and saw the branches of the trees swaying and heard the rustling of the leaves, and somehow it all ran to him very sleepy, and the first thing, you know, he was fast asleep. But Freddy knew and knew that children are to sleep in church sometimes and so was looking out for him all the time, and when she saw him out had nod and she fixed it so that she leaned a little over his head left against her, whom he was all safe.

"After a while Freddy woke up suddenly, as half, as sometimes without knowing just what makes them, and he looked along the top of the pew in which he was sitting. You know there was only Freddy and his aunt in the pew and they sat at one end of it, so there was a long vacant space between them and the other end. Right's more in the center of this space Freddy saw a big grasshopper he was sitting there perfectly still with his head pointed toward the pulpit. Freddy didn't know whether the grasshopper was asleep, or what, but he kept on looking at him, and pretty soon he knew the grasshopper wasn't asleep, for he saw him rub his right leg up and down against his left leg, and then he saw him rub his left leg up and down that slide then the grasshopper stood perfectly still again. Then he turned half around right where he stood and faced toward Freddy, and just there there was very still, but all of a sudden the grasshopper made a tremendous jump and landed right on Freddy's shoulder. Freddy said 'Oh!'

"It was only a very small word, with only two letters in it, but it startled the whole congregation and made the minister stop preaching. Everybody looked around toward Freddy and his aunt. But Freddy's aunt is one of those people who always seem to know just what to do when anything happens. The first thing she did was to put her arm around Freddy and draw him up nearer to her and sort of turn his face toward her, for she knew that if Freddy should see all the people looking at him in that way it would make him feel bad, and she knew that more than she just looked straight ahead as though nothing had happened, as though she had never heard of anything happening, and as though she didn't expect anything was going to happen for the next 700 years.

"The minister had been right away that nothing wonderful had happened and he had gone right on preaching again. When the people saw Freddy's aunt looking ahead in that way they turned around again and faced toward the pulpit more more, and everything went on just as before."

"What became of the grasshopper, pop?" asked Frankie.

But that was so stiling that Mr. Billitops could not answer.

"Dreaming Trees"

Peter Hobstein, the hero of Mr. George Du Maurier's strange novel, cultivated an extraordinary faculty for "dreaming trees." But it does not appear that he all his energies from the hard blips of his writing life he gained more thoroughly satisfaction in sleep than the kitten thus described in Forest and Stream. The other day when kitty lay sound asleep in the cushioned chair she uses for a bed I put a small piece of fresh beef on the end of a toothpick, and held it within half an inch of her nose. After a few seconds the muscles of the throat twitched slightly, the mouth opened, the jaw began to work, and most detail of chewing and swallowing followed, after which she licked her lips, but she slept right on, and she did not awake for some time afterward.

The Chicago Herald, a day or so ago, contained the following item in its sporting column: "Tom Manning, of Fort Wayne, Ind., backer of young Acton, the wrestler, writes the Herald that he will accept Billy Murphy's challenge. If Murphy fails to secure two straight falls, or should Acton gain one out of three falls, Acton is to take all the gate receipts. The match, if accepted, will be set for July 24th." None of the sports here seem to know anything of Tom Manning, or of the match, which evidently did not come off.

LOST BOTH FEET.

Frightful Accident in the Pittsburg Yards.

Arthur Duinnell, a Boy Tramp, Falls Beneath the Wheels of a Stock Train.

Arthur R. Duinnell, aged seventeen, is lying at St. Joseph hospital so badly injured that his life is despaired of. The unfortunate lad met with an accident in the east yards of the Pittsburg at 5:30 o'clock this morning. At that hour he attempted to get upon one bound stock train No. 72 as it was pulling out of the yards, but missed his hold on the car and fell beneath the wheels, both feet being mangled. The patrol wagon was called and Arthur was taken to the St. Joseph hospital, where at 8 o'clock Drs. Stemen amputated both limbs. The right leg was amputated above the knee and the left leg below the knee. The chances for recovery are very slim. Indeed, the attending surgeons do not expect the poor fellow to live throughout the day. Arthur realizes his dangerous condition and said to an attendant that it would be better for him to die than to live in his crippled condition, only to be a burden to his parents.

Arthur Duinnell's parents reside at No. 33 Brown avenue, Manchester, N. H. This young man left home with the intention of visiting the world's fair. He had no money, but managed to beat his way to Chicago, arriving safely in the city a week ago. He did odd jobs about the city and world's fair grounds, thus making expenses. Becoming homesick, he started east, leaving Chicago last evening on the stock train which caused his terrible injuries. At the east yards he got off the train to get a drink and in getting on again fell with the above result. Arthur is in good hands. Though penniless he will receive every attention from the attendants at St. Joseph hospital.

BATTLEFIELDS VS. McCOYS

THE BLOODY FEUD IS ENDED AT LAST.

A WARRING BATTLEFIELD MARRIES A McCOY.

And Now Peace and Happiness Reigns Over the Bloodiest Battlefield in the History of Family Feuds on This Continent.

THE McCOY-BATTLEFIELD feud, which for years has dismayed the mountains of Kentucky and West Virginia with blood, has been permanently settled. Several times during the existence of the terrible feud reports of a similar nature have been circulated, only to be followed by outbreaks more bitter than before, until such further has faded upon all sides of a friendly character as merely a part of a concerted plan to secure an advantage in the mountain war.

Peace was the result of the marriage of Frank Battlefield and Hattie McCoy, representatives of the younger element of both factions. They met in a log school house in the wilds of Indian territory, mountains several weeks ago. The place was selected owing to its secluded location and because it was an equal distance separated from the homes of the two factions. About whom representatives of both families were present. For two years the young couple had been corresponding without the knowledge of their families, and through their advances and the efforts of mutual friends the mountain feud is ended forever.

But the friendly arrangements come after years of fierce warfare, in which many lives have been sacrificed by both factions, in order that their peculiar ideas of family honor might be maintained with becoming dignity.

The feud opened between the families was about two hogs. This was amicably settled after only one man had been killed.

The second trouble was caused by a wayward girl. Pretty Rose Ann McCoy, daughter of old Randall, loved strategist Johnson Battfield, a son of Bad Anse. They did not bother with a marriage ceremony.

"Johnse" was an outlaw in Kentucky. He had at that time been indicted twenty-seven times. The crimes, however, were not usual in Kentucky or West Virginia eyes. He had merely a penchant of bringing unassessable whisky across the border.

Talbot McCoy, Rose's brother, was made a deputy and set out to catch Johnse. He captured him by following his sister on one of her visits to her lover. She slipped away and gave the alarm. Then Bad Anse Battfield gathered a posse and rescued the prisoner. After that Rose Ann lived with her lover at war with her family, until her lover kicked her out and her family took her back.

In 1882 a political rally made the two factions friends again until too much whisky got into the politics. Deacon Ellison Battfield and Talbot McCoy fought a duel with knives. It was a horrible affair. Claims of foul play were made by both sides. Finally a McCoy onlooker shot and badly wounded Ellison Battfield during the duel. Three McCoys were arrested. The Battfields took them away from the officers and carried them among the possums was a little log cabin West Virginia. Bad Anse Battfield led the gang.

Talbot McCoy's young wife, with a baby in her arms, went on her knees to Anse to plead for her husband's life, but the Battfield leader could not be moved. He sat with his revolver in his hand, waiting for news from Ellison. If Ellison died then he would kill the McCoys. Ellison died the next day. The McCoys were taken into the woods and tied to trees by their throats. Then the two men were shot down. The little boy was set free and Anse killed him.

While the McCoy faction was in a rage caused by the triple murder the Battfields appear to have been incited to further desperate outrages.

Until then no one was killed. Then Anse Battfield planned a surprise on three young women whom he knew would pass along a certain road about dusk. Three men assisted, and they were [illegible] THE SHOOTING OF MISS SLAUGHTER.
